GOOD NEWS ALL AROUND

OFFICERS OF THE 24TH NOT KIL-LED AS REPORTED.

Herald Illuminates, Sends Up Rockets, Fires Off Cannons, Has a Band and Paints the Town-It Will Be a Glorious Fourth of July Today-Let the Eagle Scream.

Oh, say, but it was a giorious night! And the news came just at the right time too, when everyone was feeling glum and blue because we believed we had been beaten and that our army was whipped and compelled to retire to await reinforcements.

It was about 10:30 and there hadn't been a gleam through the gloom, excepting the telegram from Senator Cannon, conveying the cheering news that all the brave officers of the Twenty-fourth reported killed were not killed and that they were doubt-less no worse off than being wounded, when over the wires came the clorious when over the wires came the glorious tidings that the fleet had been wiped out and the glory of Spain had de-parted from America; that another of her squadrons had gone down in the waves of the bay at Santiago harbor.

THE HERALD ILLUMINATES. In three minutes afterwards the roof of The Herald building was abiase with red flame and rockets, roman candless and flower pots fluminated the sir. The bulletins on the board attracted notice and the crowd which ame. The fever spread and the whistle of The fever spread and the whistle of the electric light works soon conveyed the news that something had happened. The people awake and came down town and made the air ring with their cheers. Rockets went up all over the city. Red fire illuminated the streets. Cheering crowds followed each other all around town. From the fort to the fair grounds, from Popperton to Peoplar Grove, from the white bridge to Waterioo and from Hank Barnes to the road house the news spread until all the whole city was affame.

The Herald was the center of attraction. The people gathered, at the sight of armfuls of fireworks and cannon crackers which were let off constantly throughout the entire demonstration. Every new piece of information conveyed was greeted with intense cheerver and the prophetess of the practical?

Harkness got to first by a pretty hit to right field; Andrews went out on a fly to middle. Harkness was too anxious to reach the home plates, and was put out there by a clever throw from first base to catcher. Kimbrough reach-ed the base and he and Kimmel were brought home by Meinicke, who landed a fly to middle, which proved a two-bagger. Sutherland struck out.
